ANITA ROSS
CHAIR

Anita is the younger sister of Rosemary Ross (29), who was diagnosed with Bohring Opitz Syndrome in the summer of 2015. She lives just outside of Philadelphia with her parents and sister. Anita loves to spend her spare time with her friends and huge Italian family. She currently holds a Bachelors of Health Science and is studying to earn a Doctoral degree in Occupational Therapy in May 2019. She has always had a passion to promote independence for children and individuals with disabilities and to enable them to live their fullest and best life!

As a student, she is constantly learning about new information/resources and is motivated to work to her fullest potential. As a sister and family member, she is inspired to provide support to the BOS foundation and community.

She is always willing to answer any questions or simply chat about her experiences as a sibling to Rosemary! She encourages others to reach out to her as she would love to hear a little more about all of you!
